The Department of Civil and Environmental Engineering at Clarkson University invites applications to fill a full-time, tenure-track assistant professor position in Environmental Engineering. Exceptional candidates at higher ranks will also be considered. All candidates would be expected to pursue a vigorous, nationally visible, externally funded research program and maintain a strong commitment to teaching at all levels. A PhD in environmental engineering or a closely related field is required of all applicants.

Candidates are especially sought with expertise in innovative water treatment technologies, environmental systems analysis, or engineering and policy for sustainability. An interest in collaborative research that complements existing expertise among the environmental engineering faculty and aligns with one or more of Clarkson’s interdisciplinary research hubs is expected. The Institute for a Sustainable Environment and its related Centers (the Center for Sustainable Energy Systems and Center for Air Resources Engineering and Science) provide the campus’ hub for interdisciplinary environmental and sustainability related research and education. For more information about the interdisciplinary research centers, see http://www.clarkson.edu/research_innovation.

The Department of Civil and Environmental Engineering, with 19 tenure track faculty, and the Institute for a Sustainable Environment, with over 40 faculty affiliates, provide research, education and outreach opportunities for faculty and their graduate students. The range of research expertise among these faculty has resulted in Clarkson being ranked 32nd in the country in environmental engineering and health graduate programs in 2014. Research income for the Institute for a Sustainable Environment averaged $3.6 million over the past five years.

Clarkson University is New York state’s highest ranked small research institution with more than 50 undergraduate majors, nine interdisciplinary programs, and dozens of graduate programs in engineering, business, environmental programs, and arts & sciences. According to the U.S. News & World Report, Clarkson is one of the top tier national universities and its Wallace H. Coulter School of Engineering is one of America’s best undergraduate engineering schools. At Clarkson, 3,500 students learn and live in a close-knit residential environment augmented by award-winning career service and experiential learning initiatives. Founded in 1896, Clarkson’s 640-acre wooded campus is located in Potsdam, N.Y., at the foothills of the Adirondack Mountains and the nearby Thousand Islands region. Lake Placid and international attractions in Ottawa and Montreal are a short drive away. With the population of about 17,000, Potsdam is the quintessential "college town" with four higher education institutions within a 10-mile radius offering exceptional cultural and recreational venues.

Interested individuals should submit applications, including a CV, clear vision statements for sustained accomplishments in teaching and research and the names of at least three professional references to Clarkson University’s Human Resources department at https://clarkson.peopleadmin.com/postings/2162. Applications will be reviewed starting Dec 15, 2014 and the search will continue until the position is filled. Contact Professor Thomas Holsen or Andrea Ferro with questions about the position (holsen@clarkson.edu or aferro@clarkson.edu).
