Over the last two years McCormick students designed and built the Tiny House, a 128-square-foot house that encourages sustainable living. It comes with a bed, a kitchen, and a bathroom and can function off the grid. Solar panels produce electricity for the house, which also collects its own water.