Department: Civil Engineering

Work Location: Klamath Falls

Position Summary:

The Civil Engineering Department at Oregon Tech invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor with a background in geotechnical engineering. The start date is September 2021. The successful candidate will be expected to teach approximately three geotechnical and/or fundamental engineering courses per term from sophomore through graduate level.

Job duties are primarily instructional, so a focus on high-quality instruction is important. Civil faculty are also expected to maintain high-quality professional development and service to the profession which includes, but is not limited to, externally funded collaborative research.

Oregon Tech’s Civil Engineering Department is committed to inclusive thought and action in support of our diverse community. Individuals from historically underrepresented groups and all those who share our commitment to inclusivity and passion for the strength of our diversity are strongly encouraged to apply.

Additional Requirement:

- An earned doctoral degree in civil engineering or a closely related field.

Preferred Requirements:

- Prior industry or teaching experience.
- Eligible for licensure as a professional engineer.
- Demonstrated experience writing proposals for and securing grants and contracts.

Department Summary:

The Civil Engineering Department offers both BS and MS degrees. We maintain modern materials labs that support soil sampling, classification and testing, field sampling equipment as well as asphalt and concrete mix design and testing capability. Hands-on learning is a hallmark of an Oregon Tech education and the newly renovated civil labs allow for exploration using state-of-the-art equipment. Faculty instruction is well supported with discipline-specific software, an excellent IT department, a dedicated civil lab technician, and Canvas as the learning management system. Our civil engineering student body of 120 students is curious and enthusiastic in the classroom and looks forward to your engaging instruction.
