

The department of German at Northwestern University offers a broad spectrum of courses either in German or in English in an effort to serve a variety of students from different fields within the college and from other schools across campus. It is our goal to expose students to a variety of learning approaches, content areas, and a broad range of texts so that they can gain a rich understanding of the language, the history, and the culture of the German-speaking world. In addition to taking our classes, we encourage each student to consider our many study abroad opportunities.

Modern Germany itself has become a multi-cultural and multi-ethnic nation, and we seek to represent this diversity in our teaching and research: for us, diversity, equity, and inclusion are especially meaningful concepts in order to foster a vibrant intellectual community where students, faculty, and staff can feel welcome and can excel.

ABOUT THE FRIEDMAN-KLINE GIFT

Thanks to a $250,000 gift from the Friedman-Kline Family Foundation, students in the German Department will have more opportunities to participate in experiential learning initiatives abroad. A primary beneficiary of this gift will be the highly successful Northwestern-Humboldt Berlin Summer Program, which allows students a chance to study both German language and culture in the city of Berlin.

Describing the purpose of their gift, Arthur and Suzanne Friedman emphasized the degree to which it will contribute to the educational mission of the University: "We are pleased to make this gift to Northwestern University, which will create opportunities for more students to experience the benefit of studying in German-speaking countries. There is no better way to learn about other cultures than to be immersed in the culture itself."

“Our interdisciplinary educational model depends upon students developing deep understandings of other languages and cultures. This gift opens up new possibilities for our faculty and students to live up to our highest ambitions when it comes to such meaningful cultural engagement.”

Adrian Randolph, Dean of the Weinberg College of Arts and Sciences
